Clarification of Reexamination Practice and Change in Reexamination Certificate Wording

I. Clarification of Reexamination Practice.

This notice is intended to clarify the options open to the patent owner in a reexamination proceeding when an allowable dependent claim depends from a rejected or cancelled patent claim.

A. Leave dependent claim in dependent form.

It is unnecessary in a reexamination proceeding to rewrite an allowable dependent patent claim in independent form when the dependent patent claim depends from a rejected or cancelled patent claim. The allowable dependent patent claim may remain in the printed format as it appears in the patent even though the patent claim upon which it is dependent is cancelled. Since the original patent claim numbers are not changed in a reexamination proceeding the content of the cancelled base patent claim would remain in the printed patent and would be available to be read as a part of the allowed dependent patent claim.

If a new claim (a claim other than a claim appearing in the patent) has been later cancelled, a claim which depends thereon will be rejected as incomplete and must be rewritten. New claims which depend from a rejected or cancelled patent claim do not have to be rewritten.

If the patent owner elects to leave a dependent claim (original or new) in dependent form when the independent patent claim is rejected or cancelled, the reexamination certificate would indicate (1) that the patentability of an allowed unamended dependent patent claim "is confirmed" or (2) that a new dependent claim is "determined to be patentable". The independent patent claim (cancelled or rejected at the time of the issuance of the reexamination certificate) would be indicated as "cancelled". Note that if the dependent patent claim which is left in dependent form is amended (e.g., correction of a misspelled word) the certificate would indicate the claim "to be patentable as amended". The independent patent claim is considered to be incorporated by reference in the dependent claim even though the independent claim is cancelled from the patent by the certificate.

B. Combine claims into independent claim.

It is also permissible for the patent owner to amend either the dependent or independent patent claim to incorporate the subject matter of the other. If the patent owner elects to rewrite one of the dependent or independent claims to include the subject matter of the other and cancel the other claim, the rewritten claim would be indicated on the certificate as being "patentable as amended". The other claim which was cancelled would be indicated on the certificate as "cancelled".

C. Present new claim and cancel patent claims.

It is also permissible for the patent owner to present a new claim incorporating the subject matter of the independent and dependent patent claims and cancel the independent and dependent patent claims. In this case the certificate would indicate "new claim ____ is added and determined to be patentable". The cancelled independent and dependent patent claims would be indicated as "cancelled".

NOTE: This Practice Applies Only to Reexamination and Does Not Change Current Practice Relating to Original and Reissue Applications

II. Change in Reexamination Certificate Wording.

The Office is also modifying the language of reexamination certificates directed to claims that are cancelled (for any reason) by dropping the language "having been finally determined to be unpatentable" since the existing language may not be accurate in all cases and since the patent and reexamination files are open to the public and the record speaks for itself. The certificate will merely state such a claim "is cancelled". This change will be effective with the July 17, 1984, Official Gazette issue.

DONALD J. QUIGG,
Deputy Commissioner of Patent and Trademarks.

Electronic Patent Data Dissemination Guidelines

Introduction

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) has undertaken a program to fully automate its operations. As a result of the automation, new forms of patent data will be created and new techniques will become available to facilitate the end use of one of the largest technical information resources of the nation, the files of U.S. and foreign patents. To fulfill its mission to disseminate such information and to aid in the management of the electronic information resources, the PTO has formulated the following general principles and guidelines regarding electronic, digital patent data dissemination and distribution.

To the extent that formal regulations will be necessary to carry out these guidelines, separate formal rulemaking procedures will be undertaken. The purpose of this notice is to inform the public as early as possible of the PTO's present policies in automating its patent operations.

The public is urged to consider and submit comments on these guidelines. Please address comments to:

J. Howard Bryant
Administrator for Automation
U.S. Patent and Trademark Office
Washington, D.C. 20231

Background

In response to P.L. 96-517, the PTO prepared and submitted to Congress on Dec. 13, 1982, its plan for the complete automation of its operations by 1990. The mandate to develop the plan stemmed from the recognition that problems of increasing magnitude threaten the effectiveness of the U.S. patent system. These problems relate to the increasing difficulty of maintaining the integrity of the all-paper hand-file and retrieval search files on which patent examination depends. Surveys indicate that at any one time, about seven percent of the search files are missing or misfiled. The process of matching the 20,000 documents of correspondence and other items that arrive in the PTO daily to the 240,000 pending patent applications is prone to a high rate of error. The already enormous data base in the patent examining search files alone — more than 25,000,000 documents— is projected to double by the end of the century. The solution to these problems is the application of computer technology to the functions of the PTO. The automation plan was developed around the concept of an essentially paperless office, using computer processable, electronic data bases to replace the existing paper files. Data will be converted to computer processable form from applications and patent search files using a variety of technical methods — optical character recognition, digital facsimile scanning, and word processing. Once the electronic data base is created, patent examiners and other PTO personnel will use it to perform searches, conduct examinations, and prepare office actions. A specially configured electronic workstation will be used to support these functions. The electronic data base also will provide the data to print the Official Gazette and to make copies of patents for sale to the public.

Automation is being accomplished in three stages, beginning with the installation of a proof-of-concept system to prove and refine the application of the technology to the patent process. Once proven, the test installation will be expanded in the second stage to support all of the internal functions of the PTO. In the third stage, public access to patent information will be expanded, and electronic interconnections between cooperating foreign patent offices will be established.

Considerable progress has been made in implementing the automation plan. A $300 million contract has been awarded to the Planning Research Corp., teamed with the Chemical Abstracts Service (a not-for-profit arm of the American Chemical Society) to provide computer software and equipment, together with supporting services, for an Automated Patent System (APS). Installation of the Automated Patent System for Stage 1 will begin late in 1984 and its evaluation will be completed in the summer of 1985. Part of the electronic data base — the text of patents from 1970 to the present — is available as a by-product of patent printing. Two pending procurement actions will provide for the conversion into computer processable form of the remainder of the backfile of U.S. patents and all future applications. Agreements have been reached with the European and Japanese Patent Offices to exchange electronic patent data bases. In brief, the most significant initial steps leading to the automation of the PTO have been carried out as planned.

As a result of the automation program, the PTO plans to create or obtain and maintain the following electronic data bases in its Automated Patent System(APS):

1. All U.S. patents, patent application files, and releated patent data such as bibliographic, classification, status, and ownership information;
2. A comprehensive collection of foreign patent documents and related patent data such as bibliographic and classification information, captured by the PTO or obtained through exchanges with other patent offices, intergovernmental organizations, or other entities.
3. A collection of selected non-patent technical literature.

These data bases will be accessed using electronic workstations with dual, high-resolution displays, and software that provides the capability to use index and full text search techniques. These search techniques include the ability to search according to the current U.S. Patent Classification System, and an international patent classification system. The patent examiners will also be provided with access to selected commercial search data bases using their electronic workstations.

The PTO considered several approaches to the dissemination of patent data, and adopted the following general principles and guidelines.

I. Dissemination Goals and Objectives

It is the goal of the PTO to achieve effective, widespread dissemination of patent information to all segments of the U.S. public.

A. This will be accomplished directly by providing electronic data base search and retrieval services in public search facilities located in the PTO and other locations which may be established by the Government. To the extent technically feasible and economically viable, services also will be provided in cooperation with Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), under provisions of 35 U.S.C. 13. PDLs are Federal, state and local government or non-commercial university libraries designated by the PTO to offer public, nonprofit access to patent collections.

B. The PTO will pursue its dissemination goal indirectly by encouraging the private sector to offer commercial patent search and retrieval services outside the public search facilities and PDLs. The PTO will seek to avoid competition with private sector firms in providing such services to the public.

II. Direct Dissemination to the Public

A. The PTO will seek to provide the following in the public search facilities:
   1. Electronic access to all the capabilities of the Automated Patent System (APS) that will be available to patent examiners, excluding pending and abandoned applications not accessible under 35 U.S.C. 122, at user fee rates based on the marginal cost of providing the access; and
   2. Access at commercial rates, to commercial data bases that are available to the patent examiners.

B. To the extent that it is technically feasible and economically viable, the PTO will seek to provide in the PDLs access to the capabilities of the Automated Patent System, excluding pending and abandoned applications not accessible under 35 U.S.C. 122, at user fee rates based on the marginal cost of providing those services.

III. Distribution to Commercial Data Base Vendors

The PTO will pursue its dissemination goals indirectly by making its electronic patent data available to commercial data base vendors that provide commercial search and retrieval services to the public. The PTO will provide its data to such commercial data base vendors under the following conditions:

A. All U.S. patent data created by the PTO will be made available in bulk form, that is on magnetic tape or another suitable medium.

B. In general, the PTO will not distribute the data received from another patent office but will seek to have contractual arrangements established directly between the other patent office and the commercial data base vendor. The PTO will not act as a service agent or representative of another office unless there is a special need that cannot be met otherwise.

C. Fees charged to commercial data base vendors for bulk U.S. patent data will be based on the marginal cost of providing such distribution services plus a fair market value charge for the data, as set by the PTO.

D. Normally, arrangements with commercial data base vendors will be non-exclusive. Bulk resale of PTO data by commercial data base vendors will be prohibited by the terms of the bulk sale agreement.

IV. Exchange of International Data

International electronic patent data exchanges between the PTO and other patent offices will be made when deemed to be advantageous. Dissemination of data obtained through data exchanges will be based on the following guideline: all data obtained by exchanges from other patent offices will be obtained under agreements that will permit the data to be incorporated into the Automated Patent System (APS). If the data cannot be incorporated into the Automated Patent System (APS), it will be governed by these guidelines as they apply to commercial data bases.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries, receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to library, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections are open to public use and each of the Patent Depository Libraries, in addition, offers the publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System (e.g. The Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, etc.) and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public in gaining effective access to information contained in patents. With one exception, as noted in the table following, the collections are organized in patent number sequence.

Facilities for making paper copies from either microfilm in reader-printers or from the bound volumes in paper-to-paper copies are generally provided for a fee.

Owing to variations in the scope of patent collections among the Patent Depository Libraries and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is advised to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours, so as to avert possible inconvenience.
